"I love nature"

She is a nature-loving, socially connected individual who values efficiency and sustainability in both her personal and professional life. Currently pursuing a master's degree in Environmental Science, she is deeply committed to understanding and protecting the environment while integrating practical solutions into everyday living. Comfortable with technology, especially social networks and mobile apps, she uses digital tools to stay informed and connected. She enjoys sporting events and spending quality time with friends, thriving in active, community-centered spaces like USC events, where convenient and reliable parking helps make the experience stress-free. She defines success through smooth, efficient experiences and meaningful connections, and she strives to always be present for the people in her life, motivated by a desire to avoid missing out or letting others down.
